Is this website for you?
The primary aim of this website is to help professionals who come into contact with or work with children living in families where a parent has an alcohol problem. Children and families may find some useful information on this website, but we suggest that they may also want to make contact with organisations in their own country.

Alcohol as a Risky Environment
This section of the website will consider some of the key issues that make parental alcohol problems such a risk for children.

Working with children of families with alcohol problems
This section will be of use to a range of professionals who come into contact or work with children living in families where one or both parents have an alcohol problem.

Information for specialist professionals
This section will be of use to professionals who are interested in a more specialist level of information about working with children and families affected by alcohol misuse. This includes information on undertaking research and evaluation in this area, and setting up or developing services for children and families. However, there is much here that might be of use to other professional groups who come into contact with or work with children who live in families where there are alcohol problems.
